CHAPTER 61.

The Hydro-Electric Negligence Act.

1. Notwithstanding anything contained in any other Act, it shall not be necessary to secure the consent of the Attorney-General before commencing any action against the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for damages arising through the negligence of the agents, contractors, officers, employees or servants of the said Commission in the construction, equipment or operation of any electric railway constructed or acquired, equipped and operated by the said Commission under the authority of any Act of this Legislature. 1923, c. 39, s. 2.

Consent of Attorney-General not necessary in certain actions.
