As you may know, this is my last year as Dean. I will be leaving the office in July 2003 and will officially retire from Osgoode in July 2004. This will, therefore, be the last time that I will have the opportunity to write in the Report on Giving.

Osgoode is extremely fortunate to have such committed donors. Individually they may give for many different reasons but ultimately all donors are motivated by their belief in the future of the Law School and its students. It is our gratitude for this support that is the reason we have created the Report on Giving. Along with Continuum, this will continue to be sent annually to all of our alumni and friends.

Some significant advances have occurred at Osgoode during my term. I can say emphatically that we have only been able to fully realize some of these successes because of the generosity of our donors. Our progress in technology is a perfect example. Our own resources limited the extent to which we could utilize the possibilities these new tools offered. However, as a result of the generosity of our donors we were able to make Osgoode one of the most technologically advanced law schools in Canada. Three classrooms were completely modernized and transformed because three donors made very significant gifts. As well, many alumni made a donation to the Osgoode Hall Law School Fund that was matched by the Law Foundation of Ontario specifically for enhancement of learning and research through technology. We have really seen that all gifts make a difference, no matter what their size.

I wish to sincerely thank the alumni, faculty, students, staff and friends who have given their support not only this last year but throughout my term as Dean.

The Osgoode Hall Law School Fund

Chair’s Message

It has been my honour and privilege as an alumnus of Osgoode Hall Law School to serve as the Chair of the Osgoode Hall Law School Fund. I have been enormously grateful to Osgoode for the education I received and for giving me the opportunity to practice a profession in which I am intensely interested. I believe that giving to Osgoode is a perfect way for alumni to express their appreciation and, at the same time, help to educate the next generation of lawyers.

The success and strength of the Osgoode Hall Law School Fund immediately impacts the Law School by helping fund student financial aid, innovative academic opportunities, the library and advanced technological resources to name a few. It also helps to ‘fill the gap’ between the School’s needs and resources. The power the Fund has to enable Osgoode to continue to offer outstanding legal education is significant.

This year the Osgoode Hall Law School Fund received $1,128,962 in donations.

I am proud of the success of this Fund and am grateful to all the alumni who have contributed. Thank your for your generosity.

Firm’s Anniversary Gift Assists Students to Attend Law School

The year 1997 was coming to an end and the founding partners in the law firm that was then known as Lax O’Sullivan Cronk – Clifford Lax Q.C., Terrence O’Sullivan and Eleanor Cronk – were looking for a way to celebrate the firm’s one-year anniversary.

They decided that each partner would make a $25,000 donation to his or her law school – Lax to the University of Toronto Faculty of Law, O’Sullivan to Osgoode Hall Law School and Cronk to the University of Windsor Faculty of Law.

“We each felt a strong affinity with our law schools because of the legal education we had received and the way it had enabled us to be successful in the profession,” recalled O’Sullivan, an expert in civil and commercial litigation who graduated from Osgoode in 1971. “We hoped these bursaries we were funding would assist someone to attend law school who might not otherwise have done so – or at least make it easier for them.”

The Lax O’Sullivan Scott Bursary – the firm’s name changed and so did the name of the bursary in 2001 when Cronk was appointed to the Ontario Court of Appeal and Charles Scott Q.C. joined the firm – is given annually to an Osgoode student who demonstrates financial need.

Declared O’Sullivan: “For a firm our size, this represents a significant contribution to our law schools. We wanted to do something that demonstrated both our appreciation for what we had received and our belief in and support for legal education. We feel these gifts met those objectives.”

We all have an obligation to give back in both financial and non-financial ways.
Sorbara Bursary Enriches the Experience of Studying Law in Italy

Joseph Sorbara, Q.C. and his wife, Antoinette, have a long and generous history of giving to York University and Osgoode Hall Law School, in particular. Sorbara, who graduated from Osgoode in 1968, says their motivation for giving is based on the belief that “we all have an obligation to give back in both financial and non-financial ways.”

Osgoode gave him opportunities that might not have otherwise come his way, says Sorbara of Tanzola & Sorbara Barristers and Solicitors. “My donations were an opportunity to share my good fortune with others who would follow in the same profession, with the hope that in future years my example might inspire them.”

Sorbara has supported many important Osgoode initiatives going back more than a decade but it’s the Joseph D. Sorbara Bursary in Italian Law, which was established in 1998 through his generosity, that is perhaps closest to his heart. Up to five awards are available to assist students with their travel and living expenses in each year that the Bologna Exchange Program in Italian Law is offered.

“My interest is not so much in Italian Law as it is in law students of Italian descent – like myself – and the experience of studying in Italy,” notes Sorbara. “For students who study Italian Law there is an opportunity to learn about an old legal system in a very modern and culturally enriched environment.”

Asked how he will know if the Joseph D. Sorbara Bursary in Italian Law is making a difference, Sorbara replies: “If the students who are assisted with this bursary come to a better understanding of our two countries and the implications of the different legal systems, I am satisfied with the result.”

Law Foundation’s Funding Priority is Access to Justice

Osgoode Hall Law School, along with other Ontario law schools, has received millions of dollars in annual comprehensive grants from The Law Foundation of Ontario since it was established in 1974 under an amendment to The Law Society Act, the governing legislation of lawyers in Ontario.

But Law Foundation Chair Ronald Manes, who graduated from Osgoode in 1971 and works with Torkin Manes Cohen & Arbus LLP, is quick to point out that the Foundation is “not an ordinary philanthropic organization. We’re created by statute.”

The Law Foundation, which is funded by the interest earned on monies held in lawyers’ mixed trust accounts, gives grants for projects having to do with legal aid, legal education and research, and the establishment, operation and maintenance of law libraries.

A board of trustees doles out the dollars to individuals and organizations such as Pro Bono Students Canada, the Volunteer Lawyers Service and the province’s six law schools.

“The Law Foundation’s annual grants have been critical to the maintenance of extremely important aspects of our clinical legal education and research programs,” said Osgoode Dean Peter W. Hogg.

In the past fiscal year, the Law Foundation made a special one-time grant of $200,000 to Osgoode, which was allocated to the installation of computers in the graduate carrels, the purchase and installation of an electronic notice board in the School’s mixing area and general Web development. A few years ago, the Law Foundation contributed two-thirds of what has grown to a $910,000 endowment fund, the income from which goes entirely to technology.

“We have become very proactive in establishing and assisting programs that promote access to justice. This is our priority giving,” said Manes, noting that Osgoode was “a pioneer” in the area of access to justice with the establishment of the Community and Legal Aid Services Program (CLASP) and Parkdale Community Legal Services.

“Osgoode has always enjoyed a reputation of social conscience and activism through its legal programs, professors and students,” said Manes who recently received Osgoode’s Alumni Gold Key Award for his work as President and Founder of the Osgoode Alumni Association. “We’re pleased that the Law Foundation’s contributions to Osgoode are translated into those kinds of programs.”

Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart (1865–1892) was a barrister and poet who died at the early age of 27. He left a portion of his estate to establish a student library at Osgoode Hall, which later became the largest law library in Canada.

The Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart Society was created to commemorate Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart as Osgoode's first benefactor and to honor all those who, like this generous young man, made Osgoode Hall Law School a part of their legacy through a planned gift.

Membership in the Society is offered to those alumni and friends who share this commitment to Osgoode by means of a planned gift including charitable bequests, life insurance or other future arrangements. All members will be recognized annually in the Osgoode Hall Law School Report on Giving.

We would be pleased to discuss with donors and their advisors, the many areas within the Law School where bequests can be directed. We do appreciate the opportunity to review the terms of the Will (especially for specific bequests) before they are finalized, so we can confirm our ability to accept and fulfill the gift's intent.
